

Government Funding for NGOs involved in BDS

Updated: March 2014

- Israeli and Palestinian NGOs receive funding via two primary channels: direct funding from foreign governments (marked in red); and indirect funding provided by governments to third parties (foundations, humanitarian, development and church based NGOs), which channel funds to local NGOs.
- Unless indicated otherwise, Palestinian NGOs do not publish an annual financial report, including total budgets. The funding information below is based on donor reports, correspondence, and partial information such as lists of donors on NGO websites.
- Secretariat: In 2008, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, and Switzerland established the Human Rights and Good Governance Secretariat (HR/GG Secretariat), managed by the NGO Development Center (NDC) in Ramallah. This framework is a major source of NGO funding in Israel and the Palestinian Authority. In August 2013, these governments ended their relationship with the NDC. Starting in 2014, the funds will be managed by the European multidisciplinary consulting company NIRAS and the Institute of Law at Birzeit University (IoL-BZU), as part of "The Human Rights and International Humanitarian Law Secretariat."
- Many of the funders listed below are church-based humanitarian organizations that promote BDS campaigns in addition to funding them. These include: ICCO, Christian Aid, Diakonia, Trocaire, DanChurch Aid, Bread for The World (EED), Broederlijk Delen, HeKs, Cordaid, Kerk in Actie and CCOPDP Canadian Catholic. (See NGO Monitor's BDS in the Pews project for more details.)
