Letter from the President

2019 was a difficult year, with a rise in violent antisemitism mixed with ongoing attacks on Israel. At NGO Monitor, we understood the necessity of expanding our activities and impact, and our staff succeeded in responding to these challenges.

The year ended with a very successful conference, held on December 18 in Tel Aviv. We were honored by the kind words of our keynote speaker, US Special Envoy to Monitor and Combat Antisemitism Elan Carr, who highlighted the different forms that antisemitism takes and praised NGO Monitor’s contributions. It was also a remarkable privilege to be joined by Chair of ISGAP Natan Sharansky, Chair of the Raoul Wallenberg Centre for Human Rights Irwin Cotler, Jewish Agency Chair Isaac Herzog, and other outstanding participants. Their support for NGO Monitor’s work is all the more meaningful given their life-long commitment to real human rights. (You can read more about the conference on page 20.)

These accolades and encouragements are a testament to NGO Monitor’s unique role in bringing about important policy changes, which are discussed in this Annual Report.

As more governments are adopting the IHRA definition of antisemitism, which recognizes that hatred of Jews is often manifest in the demonization and delegitimization of Israel, we are increasing our emphasis here. Groups that claim to promote universal human rights are not immune from engaging in this anti-human rights activity, and NGO Monitor will continue to demand that governments are vigilant in refusing to fund such NGOs.

Among other notable steps, the German Bundestag passed a groundbreaking resolution, equating BDS campaigns against Israel with antisemitism and condemning funding to NGOs that promote antisemitism and BDS. Judging by the angry reactions of the chronic Israel-bashers, including NGOs, this was a very important step.

Accurate, credible, and actionable research continues to constitute the core of NGO Monitor’s activities. Our meticulously detailed findings on the demonization and BDS activism of Human Rights Watch and its employee Omar Shakir served as the factual basis of multiple Israeli court decisions, including a Supreme Court ruling denying Shakir’s request to renew his Israeli work visa. Even Kenneth Roth, the executive director of this powerful human rights organization, and someone with deep personal animus toward Jews and the Jewish state, took notice of our impact.

Our research was again affirmed at the end of the year, when a number of terrorists from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine were arrested, and we showed that some also worked for European-funded NGOs.

Despite our substantial achievements, our work is hardly done. We know that the year ahead will be even more difficult. Israel faces challenges in the form of investigations at the International Criminal Court and the publication of the BDS “blacklist” by the UN Human Rights Council. NGO Monitor research shows that both have been driven primarily by hostile NGOs, often with financial support from European governments specifically for this type of lobbying.

In 2020, NGO Monitor will remain at the forefront of these battles.

We can only do it with the assistance and support of our gracious supporters, who allow our dedicated staff to continue to make a difference.
Our Top Accomplishments

UN Issues Report on Antisemitism

For years, NGO Monitor has raised the issue of NGO antisemitism and the importance of adopting the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA) working definition of antisemitism, which determines that anti-Zionism, singling out Israel, and Holocaust comparisons are all antisemitic. These efforts are now proving effective and bringing significant results.

Through our official UN accreditation, in June, NGO Monitor submitted a detailed report to the UN Special Rapporteur on Freedom of Religion or Belief to be used in the preparation of his report for the UN General Assembly on antisemitism.

In our submission, we highlighted the presence of antisemitism within human rights and humanitarian NGOs, and provided numerous examples of the development, promotion, and dissemination of antisemitic tropes and imagery by NGOs claiming to promote human rights. We described how NGO activity is a significant contributing factor to the rise in antisemitism occurring today across the globe.

In July, NGO Monitor also met with the Special Rapporteur and presented our research findings, highlighting the increasingly clear links between BDS (boycott, divestment, and sanctions) and antisemitism.

On September 20, the UN published an unprecedented report dedicated to addressing the problem of antisemitism. This report represents a major departure from the typical UN rhetoric and acknowledges that anti-Israel activism can cross the line into blatant antisemitism. The report references the IHRA definition and further highlights that the IHRA definition of antisemitism can be a useful tool for combating anti-Jewish sentiments.
Terrorists Who Worked at Europe-Funded NGOs Arrested

Over the last three years, a major element of NGO Monitor’s research has been uncovering, exposing, and combating NGO ties to terror groups, resulting in significant funding cuts.

Towards the end of 2019, the Israel Security Agency (Shin Bet) arrested 50 members of a Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) terror cell that was responsible for the murder of an Israeli teen. Many of the terrorists arrested also work for Europe-fund

For example, NGO Monitor revealed that Samer Arbid, who according to the indictment assembled and detonated the bomb used in the attack, worked as a Financial Director at Union of Agricultural Work Committees (UAWC). He had also been previously employed at Addameer. UAWC received more than $10 million from European governments in 2016-2019. Addameer also received more than $2 million from European governments and UN bodies in 2016-2019.

Another NGO employee who was arrested for being part of the violent terror cell, Waled Hanatsheh, serves as the Financial and Administrative Director of Health Work Committees (HWC). HWC received more than $3 million from European governments in 2016-2019.

NGO Monitor alerted government donors to NGOs with employees involved in this incident and is demanding that they immediately cease their support.

On November 5, the Israeli High Court rejected Human Rights Watch’s (HRW) demand that Israel renew “Israel/Palestine Director” Omar Shakir’s work visa, citing the factual record established by NGO Monitor on Shakir’s and HRW’s roles in promoting BDS campaigns. This upholds the April 2019 ruling of the Jerusalem District Court. Both court decisions relied on research provided by NGO Monitor.

The case began in 2018, after the Israeli Ministry of Interior decided against renewing Shakir’s work visa. Since then, HRW and Shakir have been challenging this decision in Israeli courts.

NGO Monitor joined the case in an amicus (“friend of the court”) capacity in order to set the record straight, submitting several briefs to counter the false claims of Shakir and his supporters. NGO Monitor appeared at the court hearings, documenting Shakir’s and HRW’s leadership role in BDS campaigns targeting FIFA (the world soccer federation), Airbnb, and others.

The District Court decision referenced NGO Monitor’s amicus brief, which “provided additional documentation... about hundreds of tweets showing a clear and continuous recent support of boycotts.”

The High Court decision, like that of the District Court, included extensive references to the facts provided by NGO Monitor. The High Court noted that NGO Monitor “provided further examples” of Shakir’s “BDS activity” and “sought to prove that the language of human rights bandied about by the appellants is nothing more than a fig leaf designed to hide their animosity toward the State of Israel.” Our briefs, according to the Court, centered on demonstrating that Shakir is methodically “taking advantage of and distorting the realm of human rights in order to advance boycott activity against the State of Israel.”

In responses quoted in the media, NGO Monitor President Prof. Gerald Steinberg explained that the decision “is yet another severe blow to HRW, which has lost all credibility on issues relating to Israel. The court has confirmed what we already knew: HRW is devoted to attacking Israel through BDS and other forms of political warfare, not human rights.”
German Bundestag: End Funding for Antisemitic BDS Groups

NGO Monitor research has exposed Germany’s severe lack of transparency, accountability, and oversight in funding to NGOs, including support for groups that promote antisemitism and BDS. We presented the evidence to key German decision makers and journalists, leading to increased debate in Germany.

On May 16, our work was featured in a major article in Germany’s Bild newspaper. The article, “German Development Aid for Israel Haters?,” detailed the findings from a series of leaked German Society for International Cooperation (GIZ) documents, including grants to Palestinian NGOs that have ties to terror, spread antisemitism, and promote BDS.

GIZ works with Islamic Relief, an NGO that is banned by Israel due to its financing of Hamas, and Miftah, a group that has glorified suicide bombers and promotes antisemitism. It also funded Ma’an Development Center, which supports BDS and employed a PFLP terrorist that died in Gaza clashes, and the Palestinian NGO Network that condemned Norway for defunding a center named for a terrorist who murdered 37 Israelis.

The following day, the Bundestag passed a landmark resolution defining BDS as antisemitic. The resolution, “Stand Resolutely Against the BDS Movement: Combat Antisemitism,” calls for ending German government funding to NGOs that promote BDS.

NGO Monitor was widely quoted in German, Israeli, and international media, praising the German decision and emphasizing that the “the next challenge is the implementation of the resolution and we look forward to cooperating with the relevant actors in Germany to ensure this.” Even Amira Hass, who attacked the German decision in Haaretz, acknowledged that “The investment in nongovernmental organizations (such as NGO Monitor)... has proved itself.”

NGO Monitor was quoted in Bild, Haaretz, Israel Hayom, and Maariv. NGO Monitor Vice President Olga Deutsch was also featured on Israel’s Channel 20.
UN Retaliates against NGO Monitor – Highlighting Our Reach and Impact

NGO Monitor has had an ongoing presence at the UN since 2013, when we received Special Consultative status. In submissions and speeches, we call out the antisemitism and anti-Israel bias of NGOs that partner with the UN and UN officials.

Rather than engaging with and substantively responding to NGO Monitor’s concerns, the UN continues to fund and cooperate closely with antisemitic, BDS, and terror-tied NGOs. Together they are working to malign our name.

A notable example is UN Humanitarian Coordinator for the region, Jamie McGoldrick. He spoke at the launch of the 2019 Humanitarian Response Plan, the central UN document on activities in the West Bank and Gaza, attacking NGO Monitor by name and claiming that “humanitarian actors are faced with record low funding levels this year.” He added that “Funding for 2018 was at a record low with 40%, the global average is 58%...The operating space for humanitarian actors is increasingly impacted by the actors of people like UN Watch and NGO Monitor.”

McGoldrick also wrote about “groups seeking to undermine some UN and NGO operations” in the foreword of the Palestinian Humanitarian Response Plan. Clearly referring to our detailed reports on the PFLP links and anti-human rights agendas of NGOs, he complained that UN “time and effort spent on rebutting spurious allegations is diverting the attention of managers from operational priorities.” Neither he nor any other UN official was able to provide an example of “spurious allegations.”

In March, UN Special Rapporteur “on the situation of human rights in the Palestinian Territory Occupied since 1967” Michael Lynk lashed out against NGO Monitor when we spoke at the Human Rights Council decrying Lynk’s use of antisemitic rhetoric in his reports.

Then in May, three other UN Special Rapporteurs sent a letter to the Israeli government falsely accusing NGO Monitor of “harassment” of NGO staff in UN forums. The letter states that “the organization in question has publicly accused multiple organizations working for the protection and promotion of respect for human rights in the OPT of disseminating demonizing statements against Israeli, having ties with armed groups, and being engaged in anti-Israeli ‘lawfare’, a practice alleged to include engaging with the Human Rights Council and the International Criminal Court.” It is unclear how any of this constitutes “harassment” or how it is in keeping with human rights for UN officials to pressure the Israeli government to silence NGO Monitor.

NGO Monitor was also featured in an annual report from the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, on “ensuring accountability and justice for all violations of international law in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem.” She claimed that “some organizations [that] have been instrumental in distributing information aimed at discrediting human rights defenders and civil society actors,” citing a defamatory report about NGO Monitor produced by a group of BDS activists. At no time did the High Commissioner contact NGO Monitor, nor did she explain how it was “discrediting” to provide the public with accurate information on government funding of NGOs.
Exposing NGO Terror Connections

For years NGO Monitor has documented the indisputable links between terror groups and government-funded anti-Israel NGOs. These NGOs also argue that the use of violence is “legitimate” and accuse Israel of committing war crimes.

EXPOSING EUROPEAN-FUNDED NGOS CONNECTED TO ISLAMIC JIHAD KINDERGARTEN

In August, NGO Monitor researchers uncovered a video in which children at a Gaza kindergarten dressed as armed terrorists and simulated shooting and kidnapping Israelis.

NGO Monitor research further discovered that the Swedish government, together with Save the Children and the Palestinian Centre for Democracy and Conflict Resolution, sponsored a workshop at this same kindergarten titled “Training of Teachers on Positive Discipline in Everyday Teaching.” Ironically, the Swedish government committed approximately $2 million to Save the Children for a 2017-2019 West Bank and Gaza project designed to “address the systemic nature of violence against children.” NGO Monitor alerted the government funders and demanded they end funding and launch an investigation immediately.

CREDIT CARD COMPANIES CLOSE ACCOUNTS OF NGOS LINKED TO TERROR

Our research on NGOs tied to terror was also brought to the attention of credit card companies by UK Lawyers for Israel. As a result, Visa, Mastercard, and American Express shut down online credit card donations for a number of terror-linked NGOs active in the Arab-Israeli conflict. NGO Monitor research played a critical role in this development.

Furthermore, in June 2019, Citibank and Arab Bank closed the New York accounts of Defense for Children International-Palestine (DCI-P), a PFLP-linked group. Global Giving also removed DCI-P from its website.

In addition, NGO Monitor uncovered a submission by CUNY Law School’s human rights clinic to the UN, written in conjunction with the PFLP-tied DCI-P. NGO Monitor sent the administration and relevant faculty at CUNY a letter and published a detailed report exposing the false claims made in their submission. CUNY has since launched an investigation, which is ongoing.

FRENCH FUNDED NGO PROJECT DIRECTOR – ALSO PFLP MEMBER

NGO Monitor researchers discovered that various French government bodies are providing €400,000 to a youth program in East Jerusalem. The point-person for the project, Daoud Ghoul, was convicted in 2015 of membership in the PFLP terrorist organization.

Following exposés in Israeli media, the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs and a number of Jerusalem City Council members sent an official protest to the French government, raising their concerns about the issue. Following this, Ghoul was replaced.
Calling out NGO Antisemitism

Antisemitism has surfaced, once again, as a serious threat to Jews around the world. NGO Monitor’s response has been to reveal the NGOs that promote antisemitic ideologies and tropes, and to highlight the enabling role of their funders, especially governments. In 2019, NGO Monitor “named and shamed” NGOs for their antisemitic activities and demanded that their funders end their support. Our work in this area has been coordinated with a number of allied organizations that rely on NGO Monitor’s unique and respected research capabilities.

In January, Amnesty International published a report, accompanied by a major marketing campaign, targeting tourism to holy and historic sites in Israel. NGO Monitor was able to preempt this campaign and successfully re-framed the discussion in terms of Amnesty’s antisemitic denial of Jewish history.

The day before Amnesty planned on releasing the report, NGO Monitor’s research and analysis appeared on Israel’s Channel 12 prime time news, exposing Amnesty’s BDS campaign targeting TripAdvisor, Airbnb, Booking.com, and Expedia. We highlighted how Amnesty attacks the Western Wall, City of David, and the Tomb of the Patriarchs and Matriarchs, falsely alleging that visitors to the sites and companies that advertise them are complicit in committing war crimes. Most of the media attention related to this report focused on the antisemitic content.

Also in January, NGO Monitor published a new report on the World Council of Churches’ (WCC) Ecumenical Accompaniment Program in Palestine and Israel (EAPPI). Our research documents how EAPPI participants misuse tourist visas to enter Israel, and upon returning to their home countries, many activists engage in anti-Israel demonization including promoting BDS campaigns and comparing Israel to apartheid South Africa and Nazi Germany. EAPPI rhetoric at times draws upon theological rejection of Israel’s existence as the Jewish state, and crosses into overt antisemitism. Our analysis shows that government donors for EAPPI have included the UK, Ireland, Finland, Denmark, Switzerland, Germany, Canada, and Japan.

Following NGO Monitor’s exposure of the WCC’s promotion of antisemitism and BDS, which received significant attention, the WCC ended EAPPI’s presence in Hebron.
Initiating NGO Funding Policy Changes

Expanding on our successes from previous years, in 2019, NGO Monitor initiated new NGO funding policies in North America and Europe. In addition to the German legislature’s resolution calling for an end of funding to NGOs that promote BDS, NGO Monitor research led to shifts in policy in both Canada and the US.

In the US, NGO Monitor’s detailed analysis of a proposed Congressional bill, which called for sanctions against Israel and was largely copied from NGO language, highlighted the false claims and involvement of terror-linked actors. A number of US Representatives withdrew from co-sponsorship.

In Canada, NGO Monitor met with senior government officials and parliamentarians informing them of inconsistencies between their funding practices and official government policy. As a result, the Canadian government added a new clause to a grant stating that no funding can support BDS. Senator Linda Frum also introduced a motion in the Senate, based on NGO Monitor research, to freeze funding to a pro-BDS NGO, Wi’am.
NGO Monitor’s Annual Conference

On December 18, NGO Monitor held a conference in Tel Aviv, under the banner of “Human Rights in an Era of Increased Antisemitism.” The conference featured a keynote speech from US Special Envoy to Monitor and Combat Antisemitism Elan Carr.
Other speakers included Chair of the Jewish Agency Isaac Herzog, Chair of the Raoul Wallenberg Centre for Human Rights Irwin Cotler, Chair of ISGAP Natan Sharansky, and former Director General of the Ministry of Strategic Affairs Sima Vaknin Gill. We also held a panel with Charges d’affaires at the Czech Embassy to Israel Kateřina Moravcová, ADL Israel Director Carole Nuriel, and Jerusalem Post Senior Contributing Editor Lahav Harkov.

The conference focused on trends in new antisemitism and practical solutions, as well as understanding and implementing the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance’s (IHRA) definition of antisemitism. It was widely attended by senior government officials, decision makers, diplomats, academics, journalists, and allies.

This conference is part of NGO Monitor’s strategy of pressing governments to implement funding guidelines, particularly regarding NGOs promoting antisemitism, and to apply the IHRA definition to NGO funding.
Combating BDS

In November 2018, Airbnb issued a press release announcing it was “removing listings” in “Israeli settlements in the Occupied West Bank.” This policy was a clear result of a coordinated and well-financed campaign targeting the company by NGOs involved in BDS campaigns against Israel, led by Human Rights Watch (HRW) and Jewish Voice for Peace (JVP). The funders behind NGOs in this campaign include several European governments as well as the US-based Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

NGO Monitor played a leading role in pushing back against the Airbnb decision, demonstrating the false premises and discriminatory nature of the HRW led campaign. We published numerous reports, analyses, and statements, and held detailed discussions with Airbnb officials, encouraging the company to reconsider its decision.

In April 2019, Airbnb announced that it had reversed its previous decision to remove listings of Jewish homes in the West Bank. Airbnb’s decision marks a major victory for NGO Monitor and our allies in combating BDS.

NGO Monitor was also, once again, instrumental in delaying the UN’s proposed BDS blacklist of companies doing business over the 1949 Armistice line. For the third time, in March 2019, a letter to the President of the UN Human Rights Council from the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights delayed the blacklist, stating that “further consideration is necessary...My office shall continue to devote requisite attention to the matter, with a view to finalizing this mandated activity in coming months.”

A Voice for Israel at the United Nations

The Institute for NGO Research, NGO Monitor’s parent organization, regularly engages with the UN, presenting submissions and participating in UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC) sessions. This year, NGO Monitor continued to be an active voice at the UN calling out its antisemitism and bias against Israel.

NGO Monitor was present at the March, June, and September sessions of the UNHRC, where our experts spoke out against the UN’s proposed BDS blacklist of companies, the rise of global antisemitism, and the recruitment and use of Palestinian children as child soldiers, among other issues. We countered the claims of the anti-Israel NGOs and provided diplomats with detailed information. In total, NGO Monitor spoke 15 times at the Council in 2019.

In addition to participating in the UNHRC debates, NGO Monitor hosted two official side-events at the UN headquarters in Geneva. In March, our event focused on the nature of the violent riots of the Gaza border with Israel, with speakers including our legal adviser and UN expert, Anne Herzberg; Lt. Col. Richard Kemp; Foundation for the Defense of Democracy’s (FDD) David May; My Truth’s Lital Shemesh and Ellie Bogdan; UN Watch’s Dina Rovner; and NGO Monitor’s Becca Wertman. We also hosted a UN side-event on business and human rights featuring UK Lawyers for Israel’s Natasha Hausdorff, FDD’s David May, and NGO Monitor’s Anne Herzberg.

NGO Monitor was also proud to be among the 24 organizations involved in March’s “Enough is Enough” protest of the Council’s anti-Israel bias.

Our research and submissions led to unprecedented impact at the UN. In August, NGO Monitor presented our submission on the Palestinian Authority’s (PA) promotion of antisemitism and incitement to violence to the UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD). Following this, CERD posed tough questions to the Palestinian delegation based on our research. In September, CERD published a report that included the issue of the PA’s promotion of antisemitism and incitement. NGO Monitor also provided a submission and presented at the CERD review of Israel in December.

In November, NGO Monitor’s Legal Advisor, Anne Herzberg, for the second year attended the UN’s Global Forum on Business and Human Rights.

NGO Monitor continues to focus on increasing our media presence and impact to ensure that our research reaches the eyes and ears of decision makers around the world. This year, our analyses appeared in media outlets in over 50 countries and were published in leading newspapers, TV networks, and radio newscasts around the globe. NGO Monitor also significantly enhanced our social media presence, increasing our number of followers on both Facebook and Twitter and launching our new Instagram page. These efforts have led to NGO Monitor experts being quoted in a wide range of media, allowing our issues to be at the forefront of public debate.

In Israel, NGO Monitor was featured on TV networks such as Channel 12, Channel 13, Channel 20, IBA News, and i24 News. We were also featured in all leading Israeli newspapers and news websites including Israel Hayom, Haaretz, The Jerusalem Post, NRG, The Times of Israel, and Ynet.

NGO Monitor research was also published in some of the most widely read news outlets in the world including Reuters, AFP, Associated Press, The Washington Post, Fox News, The Forward, BILD, Daily Mail, and more. With hundreds of appearances in newspapers around the globe, NGO Monitor has become the go-to source for journalists on issues related to BDS and anti-Israel NGOs.

Our social media reach expanded exponentially in 2019, with infographics, lively posts, and videos. We reached over 13,500 followers on Twitter and over 11,000 followers on Facebook, and opened a new Instagram account. Our short, informative videos reached over 50,000 people.

In addition, NGO Monitor’s podcast series, “Human Rights and Hot Coffee,” has gained hundreds of listeners and thousands of hits over the past year. This year, we discussed topics such as Area C of the West Bank, NGO officials arrested for murder, and Benny Gantz as the newest lawfare target. Our episodes are hosted by NGO Monitor Director of Research Yona Schiffmiller, who regularly conducts interesting discussions with experts on a variety of topics. The podcast can be found on itunes, Apple Podcast, Spotify, Stitcher, and Player FM.
